

GOVERNMENT HOLDING AGE ON STRIKE EVE

Prepared To Watch Anthracite Walkout Slated for Tuesday Without Display of Emotion.

RELIEF MEASURES READY FOR ACTION

Country Is Now in Best of Condition To Withstand Coal Strike in Its History.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.
(United News Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, August 30.—The government is prepared to watch the walkout of anthracite miners Tuesday without emotion, but not without a hand card or two that could be produced in case of an emergency that might bring distress to the public.

There is not the least bit of excitement here—which is somewhat unusual. This is principally because the country is in better shape to meet a strike in the hard coal fields than ever before, with enough anthracite on hand to last for possibly three months, and because the government has no intention of taking a hand until it is absolutely necessary, and that time seems far off.

The situation is better than ever before, too, because there is an increasing use of substitutes for anthracite, even New England now coming to the conclusion that perhaps she can dispense with hard coal and turn to other fuels, of which there are a large number.

Unless the strike is very much prolonged, or the bituminous miners are drawn into a walk-out, this use of substitutes, along with the supplies of anthracite, will adequately relieve the situation. The bureau of mines here has compiled data explaining the proper way to burn substitute fuels. If it is deemed necessary, this information will be put out in bulletins and supplied to the public. Beside this form of relief, the government has these, if the situation should demand their application:

1. Priority orders for movement of anthracite and substitute coal by the interstate commerce commission, which has taken a first step toward relief already in lowering rates on substitutes.
2. Establishment of a federal fuel distributor, as was done in 1922.
3. Government regulation of the anthracite industry, as provided in a bill by Senator Borah of Idaho, if the situation should demand.

Of course, a federal fuel distributor would not be set up unless a situation develops such as is not now foreseen. The fuel distributor in the last emergency was authorized by act of congress to serve one year, and that authorization has expired. Whether President Coolidge could revive the office by executive order is not known. If not, he would have to ask congress for authority.

The threat in the present coal situation is the possibility of a bituminous walk-out. However, this is not regarded as being so serious, as might appear, unless the joint strike strike should hold on for months, and a severe winter set in.

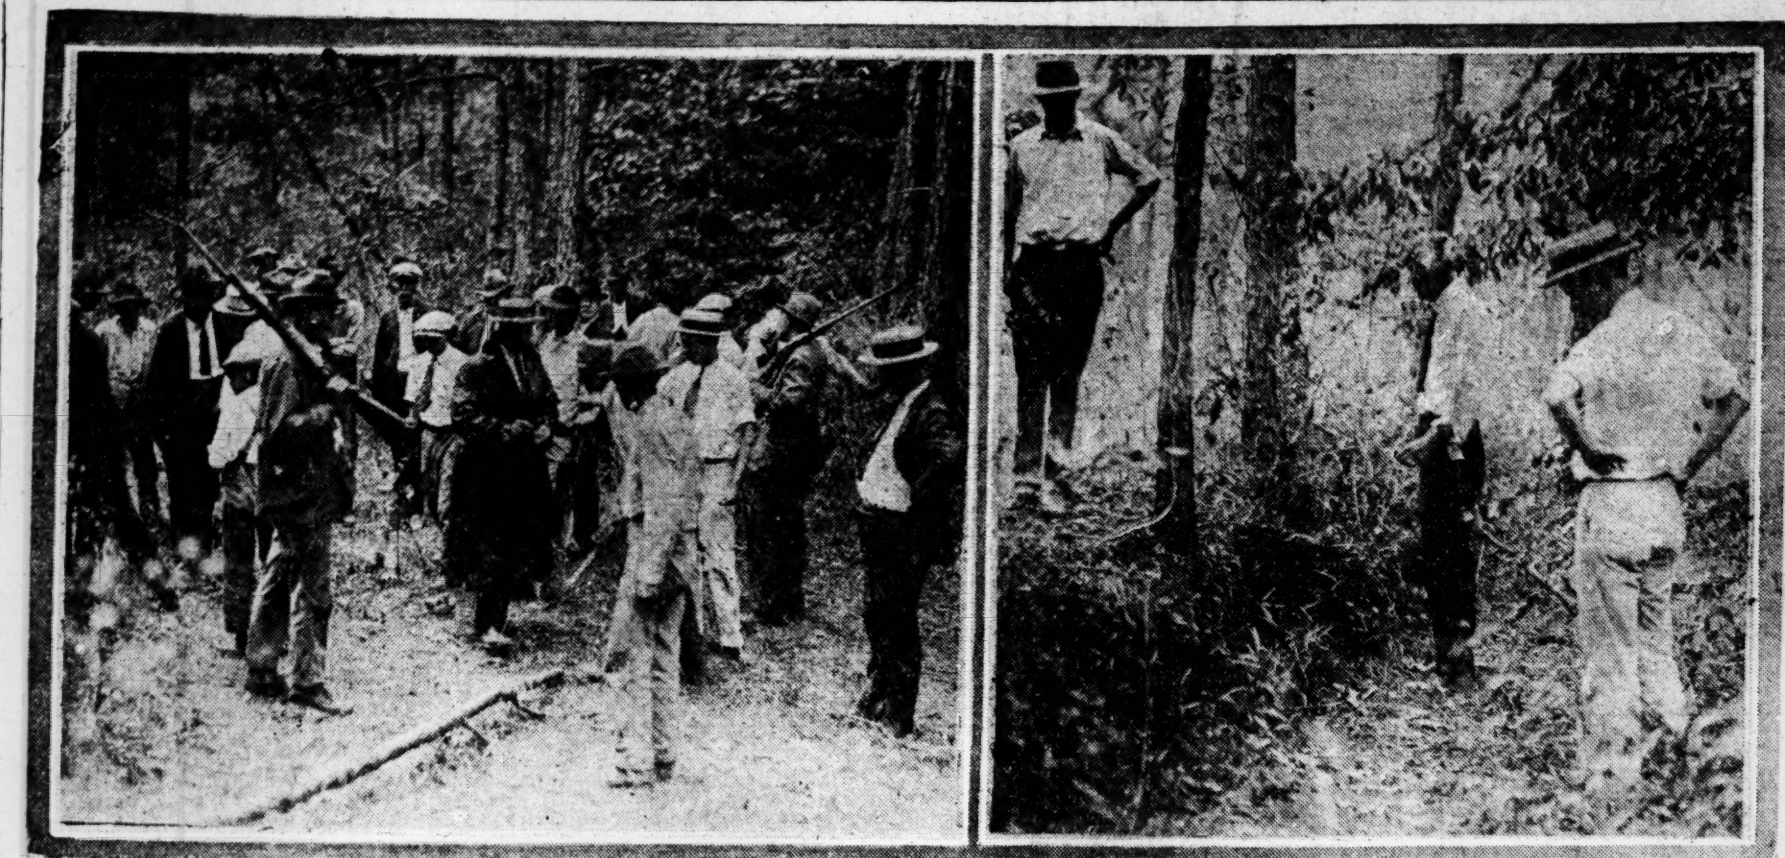

Non-Union Production.

Many union bituminous mines have been shut down, their operators being unable to compete with non-union mines, where wages scale are lower. As a result, about 65 per cent of present soft coal production, it is estimated, is from non-union mines, with 35 per cent coming from unionized fields.

Therefore, if the soft coal mines should be called out by President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, there would not be such a risk in production as in former days, when the ratio was less in favor of the non-union fields. Non-union mines, too, it is pointed out, are well scattered over the country, so that transportation of non-union soft coal would not present great difficulties.

BUSINESS DOUBLED IN THIRTY DAYS, SAYS OETTINGER

Great Increase by Kleen-Heat Company Declared Due to Expansion of Local Industries.

In the last 30 days the business of the southern office of the Kleen-Heat company, 67 Luckie street, has amounted to double the business done by that company during the preceding months of this year, it was revealed Saturday in figures made public by W. E. Oettinger, general manager. This amazing increase came after the company had shown increases for this year in the preceding months as compared to the same months the previous year.

"Our business was entirely satisfactory for the year preceding the last 30 days," Mr. Oettinger said. "Then came the quick and general increase which resulted in double the business for this 30 days of the entire rest of the year."

The Kleen-Heat company handles oil burning heaters for homes and for industries and one of the causes of the recent increase has been the expansion of industries in the Atlanta district, according to Mr. Oettinger.

"Factories are preparing for increased production and the business they have given us indicates that general business is showing marked stimulation," he said.

The remarkable increase of the Kleen-Heat company the past 30 days has not been due to any Florida business as Florida is not in the territory of the Atlanta branch.

"The improved conditions in Georgia are largely responsible for the new trade we are getting," Mr. Oettinger said. "In our territory are South Carolina, Georgia and parts of Tennessee and Alabama. Our Georgia business has been excellent and in the last 30 days has jumped astonishingly."

CAILLAUX EXPECTS DEBT AGREEMENT WITHIN NINE DAYS

Paris, August 30.—(AP)—M. Caillaux, the finance minister, expects an agreement with the United States debt funding commission within nine days after his arrival at Washington, September 23.

He believes that in any event the negotiations can be so nearly completed that unfinished minor points can be settled by some of his colleagues who he would leave in Washington for that purpose. He himself is determined to depart from New York by the steamer France October 3, so as to be in Paris when parliament reassembles.

Undoubtedly having in mind the fate of the Versailles treaty, he is taking with him influential senators and deputies. His choice has been influenced by three considerations; to have, first of all, members powerful in both houses of parliament; next, those having special knowledge of America, and finally technical advisers.

The French government is convinced that it is essential for parliament and the country to understand by authoritative voices what takes place at Washington when the French debt settlement is being discussed.

FIGHT IS REVIVED ON 'BREAD TRUST' BY PROGRESSIVES

Demand That Trade Commission Proceed With Investigation Made Upon Coolidge.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, August 30.—The fight against the alleged "bread trust" has been revived here by the forces of the late Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin.

In a letter to the federal trade commission which has been sent also to President Coolidge and members of congress, Basil M. Manly, director of the People's Legislative service, demands that the commission proceed with the investigation into bread prices ordered by the senate, recently sidetracked. La Follette, who introduced the resolution of investigation, was chairman of the People's Legislative service.

"I charge that during the time the La Follette resolution has lain buried in your hands, great strides have been made in the direction of this national bread trust," he declared. "I charge that during this period excessive and unreasonable profits have been made by the combinations which are rapidly absorbing control of the bread industry."

Negotiations Under Way.

"I charge that negotiations are now under way, which, if consummated, will substantially establish one great combination in control of the baking industry of the United States. Experience has proved that once combined, neither you gentlemen nor any others can unscramble the eggs of monopoly."

Specifying his charges, Manly said that "these combinations, which it is now proposed to consolidate in one mammoth merger, are already nationwide in their scope."

The Continental Baking corporation has 104 plants located in 22 cities throughout the United States and company has 25 plants in 20 cities. The Ward Baking company has 18 plants in 14 cities. From these centers of country with their products, shipping their bread into the smallest towns and villages for retail sale.

Get $500 for $1.

The original stock of the General Baking company, he said, sold in 1916 for $2 a share, but now sells on the New York Stock exchange for $108 a share. Since 1916, the stock has been split up by the issuance of huge stock dividends, he declared, so that each original share is now represented by six shares of the outstanding stock. Therefore, he said, this is equivalent to $1,008 for the original shares which sold for $2 nine years ago, or $500 for one.

People in County at Overflow Meeting in Court-house at Gray Declare War on Moonshiners.

SOLICITOR DUKE TO TAKE CHARGE

Stirred by Slaying of Two County Officers, County Commissioners Push Hunt for Slayers.

Gray, Ga., August 30.—(AP)—That three men figured in the slaying of Floyd Malone, county policeman, and his deputy, Frank Tucker, on Friday afternoon, is said to have been revealed before a corner's jury which is still investigating the double tragedy. Sheriff J. C. Middlebrooks says there were three men and he says he knows them. The possumen who have been investigating the case have the same information.

One of these men boarded a train at Macon on Saturday and left for "parts unknown"; the other two will be under arrest by Tuesday night, according to county officials.

Joe Duke, solicitor general agreed to come here tomorrow to aid in the investigation and to systematize the work of capturing the slayers of the two officers. He was urged to take charge of the situation at a mass meeting of citizens at the courthouse this morning, at the time that the corner's jury heard further evidence in the case.

Much of the investigation is being done secretly thus far. But the investigators say that a chain of evidence is slowly coming out which implicates three men, the names of whom are not revealed.

An unsigned letter, which Floyd Malone received Thursday afternoon, urging him to go to Chote's Mill bridge early Friday morning and meet run-runners leaving their stills, was presented to the corner's jury. It was at this scene, 100 yards off the Garrison road, that the two officers were shot to death.

Alvin Green, acting coroner, says that there will be considerable additional evidence to be presented to the corner's jury tomorrow and the following day. He indicated that investigation is far from complete.

"It has been reported that I am sick," said Sheriff Middlebrooks. "I did not refuse to go with the posse because of that. I'll take one man and go get the three men who did the shooting. I know who they are. But I am waiting to get the evidence necessary to convict. If a crowd goes after the men, someone is going to get killed. There'll be a gun battle. But I can get them without bloodshed."

The sheriff said that he was holding Walter Green and Sam Torrence at the request of the corner's jury, for further investigation. He said that he was sure they didn't have a thing to do with the killing.

Secrecy About Meet.

There was a good bit of secrecy about the mass meeting. Only persons known to be in favor of enforcing the laws and putting down moonshining being admitted. That these forces are in the majority in Jones county, was indicated by the fact that there wasn't a room in the court room to hold the crowd. Others stood outside, ready to fall in line with any program agreed upon by the leaders.

It was disclosed this afternoon that the possumen from four counties have collected considerable evidence, including some against people who uttered threats against the life of Frank Tucker, the slain deputy.

After the mass meeting today people of Jones county moved the mass meeting over to the Baptist church where at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon the funeral service of Tucker was held. The little church wasn't large enough to hold the crowd. Men, women and children followed the hearse to the cemetery.

While the Tucker funeral was in progress here, the funeral of Floyd Malone was being held at Gray.

Five Killed At Crossing In Carolina

Automobile Struck by Southern Passenger Train in Going Across Track.

Reidsville, N. C., August 30.—(AP)—Five persons were killed at a grade crossing here about 7 o'clock tonight when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by Southern passenger train No. 33.

The dead are:

Jack H. Carter, of Reidsville and New York; Mrs. Eugene Irvin of Reidsville; Mrs. Manton Oliver of Reidsville, wife of the publisher of Reidsville Review; Mrs. John Oliver, widow of John Oliver of Reidsville; Mrs. Nina Johnson Cone of New York.

All but Mrs. John Oliver were killed instantly. She died 30 minutes later while being taken to a hospital.

The accident occurred on a curve and at the same spot where 20 years ago four members of a family named Pillow were killed.

BUTLER ASSAILED BY W. D. UPSHAW

Georgia Congressman Challenges Educator To Meet Him in Debate in Carnegie Hall.

A challenge to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of New York, to debate him in Carnegie hall on the prohibition question, and a promise that there will be "crucibles and red hair and denunciations and beer bottles falling around little old New York" were contained in an address Sunday night at the DeKalb county court house by Representative William D. Upshaw, of the fifth congressional district of Georgia.

The subject of Mr. Upshaw's address was "America's Greatest Battle" and was delivered at a law enforcement rally of the county.

The congressman severely criticized Dr. Butler for his alleged statement that it was no more harmful for a man to drink alcohol than it is to eat beef. "I wonder if that brilliant but dangerous educator ever knew a man eat roast beef or hickory wheat cakes and lose his head as the result of it, shoot up the town and go home and beat up or murder his wife and children," said Mr. Upshaw.

"America's greatest battle is not economic, it is not industrial, it is not agricultural, it is not political, it is a fight for the soul," declared Mr. Upshaw. "It is a battle to prove that America is capable of enacting a great moral principle into law and that its enforcement is not a farce."

Referring to the democratic national convention last year, Mr. Upshaw said there "was too much bowery hospitality, too much radioacting of undemocratic devilment." "And the God-fearing, sober masses said: 'If that is democracy, we don't want it. The truth is, no man who is the head of such a crowd will ever be the leader of a militant victorious democracy.'"

Mother Dead, Doctors Save Life of Baby

Little Boy Is Doing Well, Grady Hospital Nurses State.

Ten minutes after the death of its mother, Mrs. B. F. Tweedy, of 129 Oakland street, a baby boy was born at Grady hospital Sunday afternoon, and late Sunday night was doing well, nurses reported.

A special meeting of the executive committee of the Grady hospital had been called, and one of the visiting doctors was summoned from the meeting after the mother had died.

He immediately performed a Caesarian operation which was completed within 30 seconds. Probably not more than a dozen cases of this operation after death have been performed in the United States, according to Atlanta doctors.

WINTER CAMPAIGN ON RUM RUNNERS TO BE BROADENED

Defense Along Southern Shores To Be Tightened Especially by Assistant Secretary Andrews.

Washington, August 30.—(AP)—The coast guard has completed plans for a winter campaign against rum smuggling, with broadened operations contemplated.

While details of the program were not disclosed, it was evident that there will be renewed activity in southern water states and a continuation of vigorous movements against the illicit traffic along the northern seaboard despite the wintry blasts. Rear Admiral Billard, coast guard commandant, is prepared to drive as hard in the future as he has since the war "broke out" to disperse the rum fleet off New York.

More ships probably will be in the service in the waters south of Norfolk than ever have been operated in that section before by the coast guard. Particular attention will be paid to the Florida coast and to the countless bays and inlets on the gulf coast from Florida west to the Rio Grande.

Patrol boats will be more numerous in the south as northern winter conditions drive smugglers to that region. The influx of visitors to that region, the prohibition authorities also expect the heavy influx of visitors to the southern resorts in the winter to provide an opportunity for the coast guard to try for extra profits there. In consequence indications are that the smugglers will be availed by an unusually large fleet of government craft, which is likely to be increased as rapidly as new boats can be placed in operation.

Two Atlanta Women Drink Poison Doses

Miss Mary Stansell and Mrs. Carl Aswell Expected To Recover.

Two Atlanta women Sunday attempted to end their lives by the poison route. Both victims are expected to recover.

In an effort to end her life following a quarrel with her mother, Miss Mary Florence Stansell, 16, was taken to Grady hospital late Sunday.

Following the application of the stomach pump and antidotes, doctors stated that she would recover. She was kept in a hospital ward through Sunday night for observation.

The young woman was not permitted to make a statement to reporters Sunday night. She was suffering from severe burns about the mouth and throat.

After trying to end her life by taking a dose of Iyol, Mrs. Carl Aswell, 24, of 87 Pulliam street, was carried to the Grady hospital Sunday night in a serious condition.

It is said that domestic troubles caused the suicide attempt. Mrs. Aswell is the mother of two small children. The Grady ambulance was summoned by the mother of Mrs. Aswell.

OVERALL FACTORY BURNS AT MACON

Plant of Adams Manufacturing Company Destroyed, With Estimated Loss of $200,000.

Macon, Ga., August 30.—The plant of the Adams Manufacturing company, makers of overalls and duck trousers, was completely destroyed by fire tonight. Nothing but the walls of a two-story building, 220 by 110 feet, remain. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

The company employed 150 persons and had 125 machines and modern electrical driven equipment. It has been in operation only a year and a half. A big stock of denim and duck was carried.

The fire is believed to have started in the manufacturing department where two cutters were at work during the afternoon.

Firemen responded to a general alarm, but the flames had gained headway before being discovered that water would not stop the blaze. Firemen prevented the flames spreading to adjoining property. No one was injured.

D. D. Adams, president of the company, said that the plant would be reestablished within three months.

HERE'S GOOD NEWS: U.S. MAY REMOVE TAX ON MAH JONG

Washington August 30.—The treasury favors repeal of the tax on mah jong sets, levied by the last congress when the Chinese game was quite the thing.

The tax is not bringing any appreciable revenue, it is explained, and might as well be taken from the books. There was such a demand for these sets at one time, however, that suits were shipped from the United States to China, to supply enough boxes to make sets, which were then shipped back here statistics of the department of commerce showed.

WOMEN ARE BURNED AS FIRE DESTROYS LARGE BATH HOUSE

Baltimore, Md., August 30.—(AP)—Three unidentified women were severely burned late this afternoon when fire swept through the playground at Sandy Beach, on the shore of Chesapeake Bay, near here, and demolished a large bathhouse, dining sheds and two unoccupied cottages.

The damage was estimated at $30,000.

The injured women were changing their clothes in the bathhouse, a structure containing 10,000 lockers, when the fire broke out suddenly burst into flames. The clothing of the women caught fire as they stumbled in running from the structure. The victims were badly burned, before they could be rescued from the flames.

Scores of bathers were obliged to return to their homes in Baltimore in their bathing suits, when the flames destroyed their clothing, left in the bathhouse. A volunteer bucket brigade fought the blaze as the beach has no fire apparatus. The fire is believed to have been caused by a carelessly discarded cigarette.

Boatwright was seated in an automobile and Lunceford was standing at the side of the car, or on the running board, when the trouble occurred.

MARINES WHO SLEPT ON PRESIDENTIAL GUARD ARE TRIED

Swampscott, Mass., August 30.—(AP)—Summary court-martial proceedings for two members of the marine guard stationed at White Court, charged with neglect of duty, were conducted last night and a report was placed today before Captain Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the Mayflower, for final approval.

While it first was reported the marines, Corporal Andrew Chantres, of Cleveland, and Private Clarence, of Cleveland, Texas, had been found asleep on their posts, Captain Andrews said the court tried one for leaving his post and the other for lying down while on duty.

The court's finding will not be made public until approved by Captain Andrews and forwarded to Washington. The maximum penalty of a summary court-martial is loss of three months pay and confinement for 30 days.

RECKLESS DRIVER KILLED BY OFFICER

Clarkston, Ga., August 30.—(Special.)—Joe Terrell, a negro, of 123 Fort street, Atlanta, while resisting arrest was shot and instantly killed here this afternoon by Ed Walton, speed officer at Clarkston. Walton charged the negro driving through Clarkston in an automobile at a reckless rate of speed and in a zig-zag movement, endangering pedestrians and other motorists, and when hailed by Walton, Terrell, it is said, resisted and sought to wrench the officer's gun from his hands, whereupon he fired upon the negro.

The body of the negro was removed to an undertaker's place in Atlanta. As there were eyewitnesses to the shooting, no inquest was held, and no arrest was made.

"It was a case of being shot by the negro, or shooting in self-defense," said Walton.

The negro was drunk, witnesses said.

ITALY EXPECTING SAME TREATMENT AS GIVEN BELGIUM

Rome, August 30.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, has published a leading editorial pleading that Italy has reason to expect at least as good treatment in the settlement of her debt to the United States as was accorded Belgium.

The newspaper points out that, according to American calculations, the national wealth of Belgium increased from $5,000,000,000 in 1912 to $12,000,000,000 in 1922, whereas the national wealth of Italy increased from $22,000,000,000 in 1912 to only $35,000,000,000 in 1922, or about 60 per cent, while Belgium's increase was more than double. In the same period, the newspaper says, France's national wealth increased 50 per cent and that of the United States 75 per cent.

The newspaper says Belgium owes to the United States about 4 per cent of her national wealth, France less than 3 per cent and Italy more than 6 per cent.

New Pacific Flying Record Is Predicted ONLY TWO OF THREE NAVY SEAPLANES TO HOP OFF THIS AFTERNOON On Eve of San Francisco-To-Hawaii Flight

The flagship of the trio of planes in the San Francisco-Honolulu flight and the course of the flight which begins today.

Airmen Moved by Zest for Conquest Which Spurred Navigators of Old Into Trackless Seas.

San Francisco, August 30.—The navy's Hawaiian flight will start Monday, but only two of the three seaplanes selected for the long cruise will participate.

At the end of a lengthy conference Sunday night, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, announced that it had been decided to leave the PB-1, the Boeing plane, behind.

This plane will follow the two PN-9's as soon as practice flights have convinced the men in charge of the project that she is fit for the dash over the Pacific.

Will Require Day More. Lieutenant Commander J. H. Strong, who supervised construction of the PB-1 and who will pilot it on the Hawaiian flight, told the conference that he would require at least a day more to get the machine in condition and that it probably would be ready to top off Tuesday.

If the flight is successful it will better by more than 100 miles the spectacular dash of Alcock and Brown from Newfoundland to Ireland six years ago. It will be the first jump over the broad stretches of the Pacific, the beginning of ultimate attempts to span the ocean's width through the air. And, according to Captain Stanford E. Moses, navy aero chief, who is in charge of the flight, it will insure the development of a superior United States air force.

Rodgers Is Leader. While Moses is in command of flight preparation, Commander John Rodgers is the man who will lead the actual adventure. He is the son of Admiral John A. Rodgers and a Spanish-American war veteran as well as one of the country's senior aviators.

He is 44 years old, a big, deep-chested officer with forceful personality. Rodgers will pilot the PN-9, No. 1.

At the control levers of the PN-9, No. 3 will be Lieutenant Allen P. Swoody, 31, who enlisted in the navy in the day the United States entered the late war. He has been in aviation since 1917 with a total of 200 hours in the air.

Lieutenant Commander James R. Strong supervised construction of the Boeing seaplane, the PB-1 and will command it during the flight. He is 35 years old and has been a squadron leader in the battle fleet forces.

25-Hour Flight. With these men will be 12 other officers, mechanics and radio operators. There will be no sleep during the journey, which is expected to be made in about 25 hours. A double set of controls has been established in each cockpit and the pilot and his relief officer will stick at their posts, shifting the actual handling of the plane as occasion demands.

Ham sandwiches and coffee are prescribed as food, with chocolate malted milk available in tablet form. The mechanics will be posted by the motors and the radio men will be in the tail of each machine, keeping constantly in touch with warships which will be stationed at 200-mile intervals.

AGED NEGRO MAN BADLY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Jim Fortson, 60-year-old negro, of Morrow station, was badly injured Sunday when struck by an automobile near the intersection of Ponce de Leon and Moreland avenues, according to police.

Call Officers R. R. Davis and G. F. Barrett were told that the motorist increased the speed of his machine after the accident.

Police were furnished with a description of the car and expect to find its driver by Monday. The negro was treated at Grady hospital.

5 Children Under 13 Burned to Death As Lamp Is Upset

Everett, Mass., August 30.—(AP)—Five children all under 13, were burned to death and their mother, Mrs. Irene Scenna, was taken to a hospital with a broken back as the result of a fire here tonight, started by the upsetting of a kerosene lamp in their home.

though longer hauls would be necessary in some instances.

Under these circumstances, it is doubted in some quarters whether Lewis would want to risk a bituminous walk-out, or whether he would get a 100 per cent response from the union fields, if he called it. Lewis has been silent publicly regarding a possible soft coal strike since his first hint several weeks ago.

It is also pointed out that with the hard coal mines shut down, there would be brisk activity in the bituminous mines, both union and non-union, which would mean plenty of work. Besides giving union miners now working assurance of steady employment, other miners now idle might get work. In this case, there might be a strong sentiment against a bituminous strike from the men.

Lewis may find, however, that support from soft coal miners is absolutely necessary for his fight, and may feel it necessary to call them out.

OKLAHOMA MINERS ORDERED TO STRIKE TONIGHT

Hartshorn, Okla., August 30.—(AP)—An official strike order effective at midnight, August 31, and involving all union miners in Oklahoma was promulgated at a rally here today by William Dalrymple, president of District No. 21, United Miners of America. The crowd of 7,000 men who heard the strike order read included miners from western Arkansas, but Dalrymple confined the strike order to Oklahoma miners.

The strike is designed to enforce the 1921 wage scale. A number of mines in the Oklahoma fields are operating on an open shop basis on the 1917 wage scale. About 3,000 union miners in the Henryetta field are affected, but union leaders claim a number of non-union miners will join in the strike to enforce the higher wage scale.

COOLIDGE WILL CONFER WITH HAMMOND TODAY

Swampscott, Mass., August 30.—President Coolidge Monday will receive John Hays Hammond, former chairman of the federal coal commission, who is expected to reassure him that the nation can face the anthracite strike for a few months without any undue suffering.

The president has been trying to stay out of the anthracite controversy, probably with the view that the entire responsibility for the strike should rest upon the operators and the miners, and that they should compose their differences without government action. If after two or three months, the public is endangered by lack of fuel, the president may intervene with a strong statement, calling upon both factions to get together for the public's welfare and arrange an agreement.

Developments Today. There will be developments tomorrow it appears certain. The county commissioners have named G. E. Rape, a former deputy, to lead the possemen from this county. Able assistance in the clean-up is being given by Jasper, Baldwin and Bibb counties.

AMERICA'S SHERIFF HAS CLOSE CALL

Americus, Ga., August 30.—(Special.)—Sheriff W. T. McArthur, while conducting a series of liquor raids Friday night, came within an ace of going the route of many prohibition enforcement officers. When Bill Cheek brought a revolver into play while McArthur was searching his home, near Leslie, for whisky, Sheriff McArthur, after reading the search warrant to Cheek, ordered him to open a large chest, in which McArthur had been informed liquor was kept. Cheek stated the warrant did not call for breaking locks, and walked toward a bed in the room. Sheriff McArthur was in the act of breaking the lock, when Cheek drew a revolver from beneath a pillow, but before he had time to fire, McArthur caught him by the throat and threw him to the bed, called his deputy and the two men had to choke Cheek into unconsciousness before he would release the revolver.

Three warrants, charging assault with intent to murder, having whisky and resisting arrest, were sworn out against Cheek Saturday morning.

'All a Mistake' To Be Given by Epworth Club

On Tuesday evening, September 1, in the Edgewood school auditorium, the play, "All a Mistake," will be presented by the Epworth dramatic club under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Strickland.

"All a Mistake" is a lively three-act farce-comedy by W. C. Parker. There are startling developments, funny complications, laughs, thrills, shocks, etc., from the time the curtain goes up until all mystery and confusion are cleared up. The play gives opportunity for every player to make a real hit. The dramatic element is well balanced by the spontaneous comedy of the postical Englishman, the old maid sister, and the excitable Irish cook and other characters.

Every member of the cast is most enthusiastic as to the outcome of the play. The parts are well adapted to the ability of the characters, and judging from the progress made in the last week of rehearsals this promises to be one of the best plays ever staged in this community.

The cast of characters is as follows: Captain Obadiah Skinner, a retired sea captain, T. H. Thompson; Lieutenant George Richmond, a nephew, James Black; Richard Hammon, a country gentleman, Edwin Pryor; Ferdinand Lighthouse, a neighbor, Cleveland McKnight; Nellie Richmond, George's wife, Miss Lucille Tatum; Nellie Hunting, a friend, Miss Perdita Collins; Cornelia (Nellie) Skinner, Obadiah's sister, Mrs. J. H. Thompson; Nellie McIntyre, a servant, Miss Frances Spratling.

The admission is 25c for adults and 15c for children. The proceeds go to Mrs. Ruff's circle for the benefit of the building fund of Epworth Methodist church.

The wedding procession was led by four groomsmen, John W. Bennett, of Waycross; Julian Bennett, of Brunswick; Joe Fanning and Heide Neal, Jr., of Washington. The bridesmaids were Miss Mildred Pitzer, Miss Peggy Barksdale and Miss Grace Huguley. The maid of honor was Miss Marjorie Neal, a sister of the bride. Little Miss Frances Colley Johnson and Virginia Howard were the dainty flower girls.

The bride, always an unusual beauty, was radiantly lovely as she entered with her father, Mr. Heide Neal, who gave her in marriage. She was met at the altar by the groom, Rev. T. J. Branson was the celebrant.

CHILEAN IS SLAIN NEAR BOUNDARIES OF DISPUTED AREA

Tacna, Chile, August 30.—Manuel Aguayo, a Chilean carabiniere, was shot to death near the Tarata boundary Sunday. The circumstances of the killing have not yet been established officially.

Bitter feeling exists between Chile and Peru over the disposition of Tacna and Arica, two provinces claimed by each country. President Coolidge recently acted as arbitrator in the dispute. His decision was that a plebiscite should be held to determine the allegiance of the provinces.

There have been several unpleasant incidents between Peruvians and Chileans at Arica since the commission arrived. Tacna is a small area in Tacna. President Coolidge's award gave Tacna to Peru without the formality of a plebiscite. Peru believes the plebiscitary arrangement is favorable to Chile and unfavorable to Peru.

Insanity Pleas By Hotel Bandits Are Now Expected

Chicago, August 30.—The insanity defense, now all the vogue among the criminal gentry as a means of beating the rope, may be invoked by Joseph W. Holmes and Jack Woods, two of the five bandits who staged the wild-west raid on the Drake hotel, July 29, and killed Frank Blair Rodkey, assistant cashier.

This was plainly indicated when the bandits were visited in the county jail by Dr. Harold Hulbert, widely known alienist, who testified for the defense of Nathan F. Leopold and Richard Loeb.

Dr. Hulbert at first was not permitted to examine the men as he wished to do. He was told that an order from the court would be necessary to do this. He obtained the order, and then conducted the examination. The bandits' trial begins Monday.

CHIEFS OF POLICE WILL BE FRESHERS IN CRIME COLLEGE

Chicago, August 30.—Imagine a veteran police chief, one who has been battered and bruised through many years of actual experience, enrolling himself as a freshman in a course for police instruction in a university.

Northwestern university says that about 200 chiefs of the United States and Canada have been imaginative enough to put on the freshman's green cap, figuratively speaking.

The special school is to be started next summer and has already received the support of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Morgan Collins, head of the Chicago police department, is working to make the school a success.

BIG BETHEL CHOR SINGS AT LAKEWOOD

More than 11,000 Atlantans jammed Lakewood park Sunday afternoon and listened for more than two hours to the Big Bethel church choir. "Ain't Gonna Study War No More," "Old Black Joe," "Swanee River," "Benah Land," and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" were the most popular songs.

Fair officials stated that the choir will give another concert before the opening of the fair in October.

JUDGE CANDLER LAUDS COMMONER

Alexandria, La., August 30.—(Special.) Declaring he takes no stock in "the guessings of so-called modernists" and saying a high tribute to the late William Jennings Bryan for his religious convictions, Judge John S. Candler of Atlanta, in an address here today said the Bible carries its own appeal, needs no defense and solves its own problems.

Judge Candler's address was delivered before the second annual meeting for a one-day session of the organized men's Sunday school classes of the Louisiana Methodist conference.

"If the gospel is presented fairly," said Judge Candler, "it will need no defense. The Bible carries its own appeal. It solves its own problems. I take no stock whatever in the guessings of the so-called modernists. I think that many things they are saying are both foolish and unworthy, but I am inclined to the opinion that strong men and good men who believe the truth go out of their way to discuss some of these things, they are wasting ammunition, and are calling attention to things that otherwise people would never hear about. The reason we hear so much of argument and controversy about the Bible is because those who question it make so much noise about it. As the men of America are both foolish and unworthy, but they will necessarily become exponents of great service, love and enduring sympathy for mankind."

"William Jennings Bryan was a man who had a tongue of silver, but also a heart of gold. At the beginning of his life, he took the right side of every issue. He had the courage of conviction in a cause that he knew to be unpopular. He never yielded to the side of the popular where he thought it was in conflict with the right. Every attitude which he took before the public was on a high plane. From the American stage, in his passing, has gone one of our greatest men, a moral force of great magnitude, a Christian gentleman who was respected by his enemies, a political factor that was always honest. Such a life will live on forever. Men will read throughout the ages to come of his life. They will pronounce his name with respect and will always remember him as a follower of God, one who has walked with Him and whose last spoken testimony was for Him."

Judge Candler concluded his address

SYNOPSIS.

Colonel Hallett and his wife, Margaret, are discussing plans for refurbishing their London home, which is being remodeled. The conversation changes, and Mrs. Hallett is reminded of the past. Twenty years before she had been married to Henry Ledway, who died in a railroad wreck after being accused, along with his partner, John Selkirk, of murdering a business rival. Selkirk had been tried and sentenced to twenty years. Mrs. Hallett tells her husband the morning paper announces Selkirk's release from prison.

Mrs. Hallett tried to match this display of composure with a composure of her own.

"I had no idea you were going to be present at the funeral," she temporized. "Why didn't you come with us?"

"I suggested it to Dad but he said it was no place for a young girl, so of course that me at sitting in the back of the hall where he couldn't see me. As to why I wanted to be there—I missed all the Selkirk trial through not being born; you can bet your bottom dollar I'm not going to miss a word of this."

Words and manner alike were brutal but Mrs. Hallett knew them for the mask they were, and to her mind the calm, dignified, the loyal heart of Joan was reaching out to her, imploring her confidence and at the same time flinging in the face of the silent young man opposite her its declaration of faith.

"I was blinded Mrs. Hallett and she could not speak."

The car stopped in a heavy block of traffic.

"Try the way, Ray," went on Joan, and now there had crept into her voice a hardness that was not assumed, "you've come to a Young Man's Cross roads. If you don't want to be in on this deal—and I quite see that your uncle's will has made it beastly awkward for you—just step quickly out of the car before this block breaks, will you?"

Mrs. Hallett, unashamedly drying her eyes, saw the long, steady look that passed between those two young people and saw Ray's grim smile. She saw, also, the glance he threw at her and sensed what he must have said had she not been present. She said it for him.

"The alternative to making peace with an enemy, Joan, is to run away but to stay and fight." Her voice faltered. "The same applies to you, darling. I don't do it—mand your loyalty against your reason. Please believe that."

"Triple" was Joan's indecent summary of her mother's emotional attitude. "Nobody can really be loyal against their reason, and fortunately I haven't got to try. My reason tells me that when you lied about the day on which you gave Mr. March that pin, you didn't do it because there was anything between you and him which you wanted to conceal. His collar was always dirty," she added, "light as a cigarette, and I don't believe he shaved more than once a week. And you could no more endure an ill-shaven man than I could. So that's disposed of."

"By instinct—not reason," said Ray Bristowe, quietly, and without removing his gaze from the crowd that thronged down which they were now slowly passing.

Joan's eyes flashed dangerously. "As you didn't fade away when you got the chance, Ray, I understand that you're staying to fight!"

Ray looked at Mrs. Hallett and, while she touched her daughter's hand gratefully with her own, she again spoke for him.

"Ray has to work on reason, not instinct," she said, "and it is not altogether unreasonable to suppose that there was a—attachment between Mr. March and myself. Ray knows, further, that I lied when I said that I had given Mr. March the pin last week. And lastly, he is faced with the fact that his uncle has left to me the fortune that ought by every right to have been his. It would be absurd to ask him to be guided by your faith in me, Joan."

Ray, still looking steadily at her, suddenly smiled and made her a little bow.

"I'm quite content to be guided by it, Mrs. Hallett," he said. "If Joan says that any understanding between you and my uncle was impossible, why, then it was impossible."

For the second time within a few minutes Mrs. Hallett was startled into tears. She had always liked best in Ray Bristowe his open devotion to her daughter, and this new avowal moved her profoundly. . . . It moved her more, apparently, that it did Joan, who was looking at her suitor with an enigmatic little smile.

"Good for you, Ray! But I wish you'd seen sense of your own accord." "You'll forgive me for not having been able to do that?" asked Ray, still addressing Mrs. Hallett. "It does not seem, on the face of it, improbable that my uncle should have become more than an acquaintance of yours; but even in the short time I've been at the bar, I've found out that attractions that exist between two favorable people—it's impossible to be sure about one person's feelings for another. And so, when I heard that you had given my uncle that pin and that he had left you all his money, I thought—"

"It was quite natural," murmured Mrs. Hallett.

"The only thing is," went on Ray, and now he flushed boyishly, "will you ever believe that my change of opinion isn't in any way influenced by your offer to make the money over to me?"

"O, Mums, are you going to do that?" cried Joan. She waved her cigarette delightedly. "O, good! That'll settle the busybodies' hash forever!"

"Of course I'm going to hand everything over to Ray,"

"I'm afraid I can't accept it, Mrs. Hallett."

In a flash, the sense of strain, dispelled by Joan's excitement, had returned. Mrs. Hallett felt it closing round her like a fog.

"You can't accept it?" she echoed. "You must surely see that I can't, whilst any mystery remains—anywhere."

There was a pause. Then—

"He means," said Joan shortly, "that you haven't yet explained why you told them to fix about the pin."

The limousine was running at speed now. Time was precious. Through a mist of indecision, Ray's voice came to her.

"Please don't misunderstand me," begged Ray, while Mrs. Hallett looked appealingly from him to her daughter. "I'm absolutely convinced now that there was nothing between my uncle and yourself. Nevertheless, there is what my solicitor calls 'a queeress in the air.' There's your direct misstatement and there's my uncle's will, both extremely queer. I don't demand explanations of you, naturally; but I simply must refuse to benefit by this murder until—well, until the queeress has been dispelled."

It was on the tip of Mrs. Hallett's tongue to say that there was no connection whatsoever between her life and

Mr. March's will. But she checked herself. How could she be sure? Since that hour in which she and obtained at least some measure of understanding of the web that was being woven, the one question had hampered ceaselessly in her brain: why was the web being woven round her? This last riddle of the web drew the strands tighter. She could not honestly assure Ray that any one of her baffling difficulties was unconnected with another. She could assume that March had vanished as completely as Ledway, for 20 years, had vanished. But she could not fathom his motive in leaving her his fortune. Yet, if she convinced Ray Bristowe that she could not fathom it and convinced him of nothing else, she would be misleading him. . . .

CHAPTER XX.

The Center of the War.

Mrs. Hallett's mind returned to Selkirk and as she considered him and the extraordinary situation into which he had been thrust, she realized that the innocence of Selkirk was for the moment the very spinning center of the web. When she had first realized that by revealing the identity of the murdered man she would be placing her husband and herself in the dock for murder, it had seemed a small thing to suppress the truth—to lie little, to temporize, and to evade.

There had been also the possibility that the murdered man was really Mr. March and that Selkirk was really his murderer. But with understanding had come, gradually, the acceptance of an appalling fact: if by her little lies and subterfuges she succeeded in keeping herself and her husband out of the dock, she succeeded equally in dragging Selkirk—an innocent man—into it. Willful murder against Selkirk! Willful murder—Selkirk! If there had ever been any doubt as to whether George and Joan would agree to be silent when told the whole truth, there was none now. Not for one moment would they consent to imperil Selkirk's life. Not for one moment, Mrs. Hallett assured herself, did she intend to imperil Selkirk's life. And yet—and yet—

She was torn with indecision. But for Selkirk she would not have hesitated. She would have said her very severest before bringing shame and disaster to her loved ones.

She became aware of the grave scrutiny accorded her by the two young people who had constituted themselves her judges. Joan's cigarette had gone out. Ray Bristowe's lips were grimly compressed.

"Do you believe that I incited Selkirk to murder your uncle, Ray?" she asked him impulsively.

"Course not!" came jerkily from Joan. "But—"

"You want me to answer quite honestly?" Ray answered her. "Then—I think that you are capable of killing in the same way that men kill their enemies in war; to protect the happiness or safety of someone else."

"Mr. March never menaced me or mine," Mrs. Hallett assured him. She felt all at once immensely weary.

"Then, in a flash, the weariness was dispelled. Her car was turning into the street in which her flat was situated and, lunging against the window of the florist's shop at the corner, she had recognized Selkirk. Only for a display of seconds had she seen his face, for his renewed contemplation of the display of flowers had brought his back and his hand and shoulders alone into view. Nevertheless, she was positive. Immediately his brain began to work. If there was any chance of sheltering him—"

She turned earnestly to Ray Bristowe.

"You are not thinking very clearly, dear boy. If you can believe that I could kill for the sake of those I love, why can you not believe that I could lie for the same motive?"

"I—of course, I see that that is possible," hesitated Ray.

"Yet you treat me with a contempt which apparently you wouldn't show me if I had killed my enemy in war. You won't let me ignore your uncle's inexplicable will and give you back the fortune. You don't believe that I had a love affair with your uncle, but beyond that you don't trust me an inch. Oh, I admit that I have lied and that I may have to lie again! But that doesn't alter the fact that I can swear to you that my motive is clean."

"Mrs. Hallett, I—"

"If you believe it, Ray, you will accept the money."

The car had drawn up before the entrance to the flat and Ray slid open the door and stepped out. At the same moment Mrs. Hallett deliberately knocked the cigarette holder from her daughter's hand.

"One minute, Ray!" called Mrs. Hallett. "Joan has dropped her hold!"

As the girl bent to retrieve it, she leaned over the most favorable people—it's impossible to be sure about one person's feelings for another. And so, when I heard that you had given my uncle that pin and that he had left you all his money, I thought—"

"It was quite natural," murmured Mrs. Hallett.

"The only thing is," went on Ray, and now he flushed boyishly, "will you ever believe that my change of opinion isn't in any way influenced by your offer to make the money over to me?"

"O, Mums, are you going to do that?" cried Joan. She waved her cigarette delightedly. "O, good! That'll settle the busybodies' hash forever!"

"Of course I'm going to hand everything over to Ray,"

"I'm afraid I can't accept it, Mrs. Hallett."

In a flash, the sense of strain, dispelled by Joan's excitement, had returned. Mrs. Hallett felt it closing round her like a fog.

"You can't accept it?" she echoed. "You must surely see that I can't, whilst any mystery remains—anywhere."

There was a pause. Then—

"He means," said Joan shortly, "that you haven't yet explained why you told them to fix about the pin."

The limousine was running at speed now. Time was precious. Through a mist of indecision, Ray's voice came to her.

"Please don't misunderstand me," begged Ray, while Mrs. Hallett looked appealingly from him to her daughter. "I'm absolutely convinced now that there was nothing between my uncle and yourself. Nevertheless, there is what my solicitor calls 'a queeress in the air.' There's your direct misstatement and there's my uncle's will, both extremely queer. I don't demand explanations of you, naturally; but I simply must refuse to benefit by this murder until—well, until the queeress has been dispelled."

It was on the tip of Mrs. Hallett's tongue to say that there was no connection whatsoever between her life and

Drill and Expansion Sleeve Another New Service Plant Supplant Hammer Now Days Added to Atlanta's Long List

In the days when lumber was used almost exclusively for every form of construction the nail and the screw did yeoman service.

But today the use of concrete has become general. The nail serves well in holding the wooden forms together until the concrete is poured, and then it is done. But there still remains the problem of fastening things to the floors, walls and ceiling. Of course engineers and architects try to anticipate the need or anchorage by placing lugs, hangers and bolts in the concrete forms—wherever practicable—but even then there are scores of fastenings to be made for window sash, partitions, wiring, shelving, machinery, floor coverings, etc. In the new Benjamin Franklin hotel in Philadelphia, a study of the plans showed that there were more than 100,000 holes to be drilled in concrete floors, walls and ceilings before the building was ready for occupancy. In the same city the new Elks temple required the drilling of 38,000 holes just to fasten the carpets.

These cases are merely representative, but they show definitely how the problem of "fastening things" has become an enormous task with the advance of concrete.

What does this mean in labor, in time, in cost? By hand it is slow, laborious work. One man with a star drill and hammer can cut a hole three quarters of an inch in diameter and two inches deep in about 15 minutes—four in an hour. At that rate it would have required one man almost three years to provide a means of fastening the carpet in the Philadelphia Elks temple, and he would have to work steadily. At a rate of from 60 to 75 cents per hour the cost of the work would have been about $8,700.

Of course such time and such costs are out of the question, but the figures show some startling reasons why some means of doing the work in concrete must be generally used.

Here in Atlanta there is a portable tool that is rapidly gaining in popularity for this kind of work. It is the SYNTRON Electric Hammer, made by the National Electric Mfg. Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Although this hammer is light and easily handled by one man it will drill holes in hard concrete at the rate of three inches per minute. Electric current, sufficient to run a small motor, can be secured from any light socket. The hammer is also very effective, as a quick means of cutting or chipping concrete or masonry. It was this SYNTRON Hammer that was used by the Philadelphia contractor used on the Elks temple who, where one man was able to drill over 1,200 holes a day.

For an electrical tool without either gears or motor this hammer is one of the wonders of the age. It is sold here by the Walraven company, of 56 West Alabama street, who will demonstrate the hammer on request.

Atlanta has recently had another acquisition to the many large industrial and service plants located in this busy metropolis of the south.

This firm of A. L. Quinn & Co. has located at 661 Whitehall street, where they have a large building that can accommodate nearly 100 cars at a time, and they are very busy at this time painting and recovering more than a score of cars.

This firm, headed by Mr. Quinn, is not new in this line of work, the fact being they are experts of many years' service. Mr. Quinn having had over 20 years' experience here in Atlanta as superintendent for one firm and then with large eastern companies where thousands of cars were painted yearly.

Mr. Quinn, being an Atlanta man and profiting by his years of experience with the "other fellows," decided to come back home and open up a model auto paint, recovering and upholstering shop here, where weather conditions were more favorable all the year around for this class of work.

A very important factor in automobile painting is plenty of room, for as several coats of paint must be put on them and the one coat cannot be put on until the preceding one is thoroughly dry, and this means a plant of this kind to keep busy must have many cars in the shop at one time.

This firm has provided itself with the very latest equipment, and an old car, poor-looking car that is rolled in their shop comes out again in a few days looking like it just was new from the factory. When it comes to colors, they have every known popular or individual color that any car owner may desire.

The new lacquer finish put on by this company is guaranteed not to crack, and retains its beautiful finish for years; washing with hot or cold water does not affect it, and it will be very well for the people of Atlanta and vicinity to see them about this high-grade work when they think their car needs painting.

But painting is not all the work this firm does, as they recover every known make of car and have a large variety of coverings to select from. They are Atlanta agents for the new patented Rex glass inclosure that they can adjust and put on all makes of open cars. They are equally as well prepared to do all grade of car upholstery and seat recovering.

Mr. Quinn and his associates, though only in business here a few weeks, are doing that kind of good work that makes good friends of their customers, and they wish to extend a cordial invitation to all those contemplating having any work done in their line to give them a call in person or a ring at West 3000 and courteous attention will be given.

We are sheet metal experts in a new building especially built and equipped to make and repair any and all things made of sheet metal. With 35 years of experience behind us, we assure you the very best work at most reasonable prices.

Five Safety Points, First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds

In a previous article based on the subject of five safety points of first mortgage real estate bonds, the matter of a reasonable margin of safety was taken up.

This article deals with the trustworthiness—the individual, bank or trust company, who acts for the bondholders. It has been the custom with some of the larger first mortgage real estate bond issues to have as trustee for each bond issue, an individual, usually an official of the company which has organized the issue, to whom the sole duty of trustfulness is delegated.

No one, not even the very novice, needs the desirability of having some outside agency, either an individual or a bank, to act for and protect the interest of the bondholder. Not only in which the very best of the outside trustfulness insure receipts and disbursements of funds being handled in a manner looking to the best interests of the bondholder, but it is equally true that in the case where a bank or trust company accepts a trusteeship on a bond issue of the type mentioned, more and better safeguarding is drawn by the bondholder in order to insure the acceptance of the trusteeship by the bank or trust company.

No official of a bond house can qualify so well for the trusteeship on a bond issue in which his own house is interested, as an outside trustee—either an individual or a bank. This statement goes without question, and the bondholder should look carefully to this phase of the issue in which he expects to invest.

The first mortgage real estate bonds handled by Brannan, Beckham and Company, investment bankers in the Wynne-Claughton building are invariably safeguarded by an independent trusteeship, and it is the policy of this company to handle only the issue in which the maximum safety has been incorporated.

The third safety point in first mortgage real estate bonds is that of guarantee of payment of principal and interest by an outside agency—usually an insurance company. This will be the subject of the next article.

Houston Street Electric Welding Plant Doing Guaranteed Work

The Electric Welding company, of 52 Houston street, is forging to the front as one of the foremost welders in this section of the country. The main reason for this is its ability and facilities to make as strong as new any two or more broken parts of metal.

While they weld all kinds of metal from a finger ring to a white war they are very busy welding broken parts of automobiles these days, as every one seems to know they save time and expense by patronizing this firm.

The splendid success of this firm has in making bodies for the Atlanta soft drink trade, been attracting the attention of soft drink makers elsewhere, and orders are now coming in from cities some distance from Atlanta. They are using no rivets in the frame welding of all parts which make the bodies as strong as if made of one solid piece.

A particular feature of this firm is that if the circumstances are such that it is not convenient or feasible to bring the two or more broken parts of a big metal object to its shop on Houston street, they can load necessary equipment upon a truck and do the work anywhere at any time, these occasions arise quite often with this firm and they save their customers much time and money by this service.

The manager of this splendid service company, W. G. Robinson, has associated with him some of the most expert metal welders in the south and every job they do, he states, is fully guaranteed, while at the same time their splendid equipment and experience enables them to do all this class of work at prices less than metal welding can be done elsewhere. This firm is advantageously located and with a phone connection of IVy 4462. Any one in need of repair work and a good job at reasonable prices will do well to call on them.

Luckie Street Firm Working Day and Night on Good Work

A representative of this department of The Constitution in passing down Luckie street the other night was surprised to see the big Dowman and Wilkins printing plant running at full speed so late at night, considering that rather unusual. The proprietors were seen the next day and found to be so cheerful over the outlook for good business this fall that it was a real pleasure to talk to them.

It seems this firm gets out 14 big publications every month and in order to keep up with their large custom and special order trade they have to have their big presses running all night. This is gratifying indeed to know that Atlanta has a big printing plant that runs night and day all the year around.

The high class of work done by this firm can be seen every month in the City Builder, the monthly publication of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The beauty and workmanship in this civic publication is repeated in their other works and is recognized as the best there is in the printing line.

Two large catalogues gotten out during this month now closing were considered masterpieces by expert printers. Especially was this so of a large, handsome catalogue gotten out for a large Georgia marble company. Those who have seen it claim that it can not be excelled in this or any other country.

Speaking about general conditions in Atlanta and vicinity, A. E. Dowman, the president, stated the Atlanta business man knows this city is built on the solid granite of Stone Mountain as a foundation and these men know that this City of the South has a climate and geographical advantage that will always appeal to big business and that Atlanta's future is as assured as the mountain it is built upon.

Charles W. Wilkins stated that men may leave Atlanta but after a time they drift back more imbued with the Atlanta spirit than ever and the staunch citizens here are predicting that Atlanta will continue to outstrip all cities of her class in the future even more than she has done in the past.

Rev. Luke E. Rader Preaches on Second Coming of Christ

Rev. Luke E. Rader preached Sunday night to a crowded house upon the second coming of Christ. The minister said that there are to be two distinct comings of the Savior. The first, he said, will be when Christ will descend to the earth in a spiritual way and gather His church to Him for a period that will be spent in the air; the second and last coming will be when Christ will return to the earth to levy penalties upon all who have broken His laws.

Dr. Rader said that people should not deceive themselves as to the degree of severity of the punishment that will be imposed upon them at the time when He appears the last time upon the earth to judge and condemn. "It will be a time of vengeance when the pent-up wrath of God will be turned loose upon those who have transgressed the law," said the preacher.

Before the sermon Mrs. Rader rendered a solo.

'Love' Is Declared Only Word Needed in Marriage Ritual

"OBEY" IS IMMATERIAL, SAYS MRS. A. H. STERNE
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Whether the word "obey" is struck from or left in the Episcopal church marriage service makes not a tithe of difference, in the opinion of a representative of the contracting party most interested—a woman.

The woman is Mrs. A. H. Sterne, prominently identified with church and Parent-Teacher association work here. She is a member of the fashionable All-Saints Episcopal church and is the wife of the former president of the Churchmen's Club of Atlanta.

Mrs. Sterne has been much interested in the debate between the Rt. Rev. Trilling Peake Johnson, bishop of Colorado, who opposes, and the Rt. Rev. Charles L. Slattery, bishop coadjutor of Massachusetts, who espouses the elimination of the word "obey" from the marriage service of the church.

Final action on whether it will be eliminated will be taken at the triennial general conference of the Episcopal church in New Orleans on October 7.

"The big thing in the marriage ceremony," said Mrs. Sterne, "is the word 'love,' and if everything else is eliminated but that, the ceremony, I think, still will be complete."

Mrs. Sterne also delivers a slight rebuke to the clergy for engaging in controversies over such trivialities, while "we in the pews are hungry for the simple but dynamic teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Jan Rubini Joins Staff of Howard; Stage Enlarged

BY BILL MAHONEY.
Jan Rubini, internationally known musician, arrived in Atlanta Sunday night from Los Angeles, Calif., and will make his initial appearance before an Atlanta audience today at the Howard theater.

Born in Stockholm, Sweden, he became a resident of Los Angeles, where he was able to hold a violin in his hand, under the able instruction of his father, Dr. Samuel Rubini, who was at that time tutor to the royal family of Sweden.

He came to America in 1916, stopping in New York for several months before making his tour of principal cities of the north, east and west. Mr. Rubini then made his home in Los Angeles where he has been since.

My greatest desire and ambition will be that of winning the hearts of my Atlanta audience," Mr. Rubini declared.

He then outlined portions of a vast program in special features for the Howard theater.

In our program we are planning to use much local talent, which is understood is exceptional, he said. I want the singers, musicians and dancers to come and meet me at the Howard. They will be given treats and will be called upon for numbers, from week to week.

"But no money is to be spared in making the features of our program the best obtainable. We are planning to bring many of the leading artists of the country to Atlanta during the next year."

Mr. Rubini will supervise all productions together with correct synchronization of music for the screen.

Charles G. Branham, manager of the Howard theater, Sunday night, said that the management was cooperating in every way with Mr. Rubini in putting over his plans. Work of enlarging the stage of the theater was begun at 11 o'clock Saturday night and will be completed by 11 o'clock this morning. Sixty-five workmen have been employed on the task.

PRISONER LEAVES POLICE STATION WITH VISITORS

While a group of visitors was leaving police station Sunday, W. J. Blanton, of 557 Washington street, locked up on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, disappeared, according to the police.

He had been locked in the state cell by mistake. He asked Turnley H. E. King for permission to telephone his wife. It was granted, and it is supposed that he made his escape only a few minutes later.

Blanton's absence from the bastille was discovered Sunday night at 8 o'clock when his mother came to see him.

DR. W. J. MAHONEY OCCUPIES PULPIT AT CAPITOL VIEW

Dr. William J. Mahoney, Baptist minister and widely known lecturer and business man, Sunday night preached to the congregation of the Capitol View Christian church. The pastor, C. E. Blumore, is holding a meeting in South Carolina.

Dr. Mahoney spoke on the subject, "Who Is Jesus?" He outlined a four-fold conception of Christ, a man, the Son of God, the Savior of the world and as the answer of a new experience in accepting Him as Lord and God.

The speaker was introduced by Judge Thomas O. Hatcock.

Strange World War Romance WIFE MARRIED, THINKING HUSBAND DEAD Revealed by Double Suicide

New York, August 30.—(AP)—In reply to a telegram sent last Friday to Walter J. Fitzpatrick, a manufacturer, reputed to be well-to-do, that his wife, Mrs. Marie Louise Bernier Fitzpatrick, had ended her life by gas in her New Garden apartment, there came from Orlando, Fla., the information that Fitzpatrick, upon receipt of the telegram, had shot and killed himself.

Out of the tragedy, which ended a year of marital discord, came today the story of a singular romance of the world war, told by intimates of Mrs. Fitzpatrick. It was disclosed that Mrs. Fitzpatrick, daughter of a Belgian merchant, had married Colonel Jack Leacroft of the British army in 1917. He had gone off to the front after the ceremony in London. The second marriage was a failure. Mrs. Leacroft came to this country, met Fitzpatrick in San Francisco and they were married in 1920, after she had obtained a divorce.

Some time ago Mrs. Fitzpatrick, in the streets of New York, came face to face with Colonel Leacroft. The ex-army officer told how the gas had caused an attack of amnesia from which he had suffered for a long time. When his memory returned some incidents of his life were blurred. He set his mind cleared and he set out to find the little Belgian girl he had married in London.

According to friends of Mrs. Fitzpatrick the colonel was stricken with remorse and urged a re-marriage. He urged her to divorce Fitzpatrick and marry him again. At that time the Fitzpatricks were happy and Mrs. Fitzpatrick laughed off the suggestion. Convinced that his case was hopeless, the colonel, according to Mrs. Fitzpatrick, quitted the scene. Subsequently, they understood, Colonel Leacroft married another. They said the Fitzpatricks had been estranged for a year.

Briefly, the British officials reported that Colonel Leacroft had been seen to collapse in a gas attack and had not been seen thereafter. Mrs. Leacroft came to this country, met Fitzpatrick in San Francisco and they were married in 1920, after she had obtained a divorce.
